Description

This detached villa in Ormoideia is ready for immediate move-in and comes fully furnished, so the transition from purchase to daily life is short. Internally the property spans 236 square meters across four bedrooms and four bathrooms, giving each room its own dedicated bathroom and enough separation for a household with multiple occupants living independently under one roof.

The villa's scale allows for distinct living, sleeping, and gathering zones, with furnishings already in place throughout. Being sold key ready means no waiting on construction or handover timelines.

Highway access from the property means quicker journeys to other parts of the island, and everyday amenities are within easy reach, reducing the need to travel far for routine errands.

Ormoideia is a village in the Larnaca District, on the southeastern coast of Cyprus, not far from the town of Larnaca itself. The area combines a traditional village core with newer low-rise residential development, typical of towns of its size on this part of the island, and carries the amenities a settlement of that scale generally supports. Its coastal position places it within the broader belt of southeastern Cyprus known for its flat terrain and Mediterranean climate.
